THE FENCE

BY FLEUR MURPHY

A 29 SCENES PRODUCTION

Boundaries blur as one woman navigates the delicate line between observation and intervention in this compelling new drama.

What do you do when you can't look away?

In the quiet streets of an ordinary suburb, the fence between two neighbouring houses comes down. Where once there was a clear separation between you and the couple next door, now there's only a dirt line and human decency keeping prying eyes out of each other's backyards. Except you've noticed they have a new baby and that she keeps locking herself out. And then there are the sounds late at night that have become impossible not to hear. Should you say something, do something? But is it what you think it is? And is it really your place to get involved?
